

Leonie Kelly, Director and Head of Ogier Sustainable Investment Consulting, will be speaking at the Lexology ESG Masterclass 2023, which is taking place on Thursday 16 February.

Description

Last year, COP27 ended with the first-ever climate "loss and damage" fund, and COP15 with a deal to safeguard vital ecosystems and biodiversity. What does this all mean for companies' legal teams, and how can they put policy into action to quench demands from an increasingly aware and scrutinising base of shareholders and potential investors?

This Masterclass brings together experts based in Asia-Pacific to explore the latest developments in climate regulation, tips on working constructively with third-party vendors on sustainability issues, and how to stay ahead of trends.

Topics include:

- how sustainability policies, such as ESG, are monitored across vendors;
- consequences of taking no climate action (including greenwashing);
- methods to gather information and stay ahead of regulatory trends.

For further information about the Masterclass and to register please click here.