

Matt Guthrie will be attending this conference organised by Henley & Partners.

In today's volatile world, having multiple options in terms of residence and citizenship provides high-net-worth families with greater global mobility, increased security, improved access to premium education, and more extensive business and investment opportunities. At the same time, sovereign states recognize the innovative financing opportunity that such programs present: sovereign equity is clearly the better alternative than sovereign debt, especially for smaller nations.

Matt will be joining a panel discussing 'Multiple Passports for UHNWI: 21st-Century Wealth Planning Strategies'.
