Background and experience

Before joining Ogier in January 2024, Carl Hey was an associate at Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft LLP in London and was previously a senior associate at a global offshore law firm in the Cayman Islands and London.

Carl obtained a Bachelor of Laws (Honours) and a Bachelor of Arts (Political Studies and History) from the University of Auckland, New Zealand and a Master of Science with Distinction (Global Finance & Banking) from King's College London. He is admitted to practice as a barrister and solicitor in New Zealand, as an attorney in the Cayman Islands (non-practising) and as a registered associate in Bermuda (non-practising).

Before training as a lawyer, Carl served as a warfare officer in the Royal New Zealand Navy, eventually attaining the rank of lieutenant commander.

Admitted in:

2024 - Registered foreign lawyer (England and Wales)

2022 - Bermuda (non-practising)

2018 - Cayman Islands (non-practising)

2011 - New Zealand (non-practising)
