Background and experience

Cornelia is a New Zealand qualified lawyer with a strong background in finance, investment funds and corporate matters. Her knowledge across both investment funds and finance matters means that she can provide holistic advice to her clients in an efficient manner. Before joining Ogier from New Zealand in 2019, she had acted on corporate transactions such as mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, shareholding structures, as well as acting for major banks and borrowers on acquisition finance, syndicated facilities and property finance matters.

In addition to practising law, Cornelia has a strong passion for legal education. She was a professional teaching fellow at the University of Auckland in New Zealand for five years, where she taught legal writing and communication and tutored contract law. She is currently a guest instructor for legal writing at the Truman Bodden Law School in the Cayman Islands, an affiliate of the University of Liverpool.

Cornelia holds a Bachelor of Laws (Honours) and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Auckland. She is fluent in English, Chinese and French.
