Background and experience

Before joining Ogier in 2022, Osahon was part of the finance team at a leading Nigerian law firm, Templars, where he specialised in diverse financings, capital markets and M&A transactions. He graduated from the University of Essex in 2018 with first class honours, winning the best prize in commercial law, and qualified as a barrister and solicitor of the Supreme Court of Nigeria in 2019. He has been involved in various landmark corporate transactions in West Africa.
