Hundreds of young musicians will be raising the 'big top' at Fort Regent next month at the Jersey Music Service Gala Concert.

The evening extravaganza sponsored by Ogier will see over 200 children from 38 of the island's schools performing in 'A Night at The Musicals' in the Gloucester Hall on Saturday 30 March.

The first half of the evening will be dedicated to individual pieces from the complete range of JMS ensembles and choirs including the Training Wind Band, Training String Orchestra, Intermediate Wind Band, Intermediate String Orchestra, the JMS Guitar Ensemble, Jersey Youth Orchestra and Jersey Youth Wind Band.

The second half will see young musicians, aged from seven to 18 come together to perform a variety of pieces including arrangements from The Greatest Showman.

Commenting on the event, Dr Graham Cox, Principle of JMS said, "These fantastic young musicians have a number of large-scale performances under their belts now and the experience has helped in so many ways from developing teamwork and self-confidence to social skills.
