

I am about to get divorced, do I need new Wills?

Insights - 12/04/2023

With any big life change it is always recommended that you review your Wills and succession plans - including if you get a divorce.

A divorce doesn't necessarily invalidate an entire Will. But if you have named your ex as your executor, for example, then this will no longer be valid. That's because if you divorce, upon your death, your former spouse or civil partner is treated as having predeceased you.

If you still wish your ex to inherit your estate under your Will then you must update your Will to this effect. This is unusual but not uncommon, especially where a couple share young children.

It is always advisable to review your Wills after a major life change such as divorce, to ensure that they remain in accordance with your wishes and take into account any change in your circumstances.

About Ogier

Ogier is a professional services firm with the knowledge and expertise to handle the most demanding and complex transactions and provide expert, efficient and cost-effective services to all our clients. We regularly win awards for the quality of our client service, our work and our people.

Disclaimer

This client briefing has been prepared for clients and professional associates of Ogier. The information and expressions of opinion which it contains are not intended to be a comprehensive study or to provide legal advice and should not be treated as a substitute for specific advice concerning individual situations.

Regulatory information can be found under Legal Notice

Meet the Author

Henry Wickham

Partner

Jersey

E: henry.wickham@ogier.com

T: +44 1534 514291

Related Services

Expat services

Local Legal Services

Legal

Estate Planning, Wills and Probate